

Hello!

My name is Mr. Negro and this is my second year teaching 4th grade at Ironwood Schools. I received my teaching certification from NMU in 2000 and have taught 14 years in both Michigan and Wisconsin schools. This experience has provided me a good basis in the areas that I teach along with a solid understanding of how students are motivated to learn. I take a great deal of pride in developing lessons for my students that will expand their understanding of the world around them and in developing their own personal “love of learning.”

I have a wide range of interests including watching Green Bay Packer football, coaching basketball, collecting music from many genres, taking road trips, and taking care of my 3 dogs: Lambeau, Laddie, and Molly.

I have lived in Wakefield most of my life and enjoy many of the friendships I've developed in the area over the years. I'm also the proud father of one son, Alex. He just finished college at NMU and a 6 month internship in Molecular Genetics at Mayo Clinic. I take a great deal of pride in being both a teacher and parent.
